Pedagogies of Il/Liberal Humanism

Kandice Chuh

Kandice Chuh is a professor of English, American studies, and Critical Social Psychology at the CUNY Graduate Center, where she is also a member of the M.A. in Liberal Studies faculty, and affiliate faculty to the Africana studies program. The author of "The Difference Aesthetics Makes: on the humanities ‘after Man’" (2019) and "Imagine Otherwise: on Asian Americanist Critique" (2003), which won the American Studies Association’s Lora Romero Book Award, Chuh is the co-editor, with Karen Shimakawa, of Orientations: Mapping Studies in the Asian Diaspora (2001). She teaches courses on aesthetic theory, queer theory and queer of color critique, decolonial studies, and Asian and Asian American racialization.

Tuesday, March 31, 4pm-6pm
Loria Center B-51
190 York Street

FACILITATOR: Lisa Lowe, Samuel Knight Professor of American Studies and Ethnicity, Race, and Migration

Co-sponsored by the Edward J. and Dorothy Clarke Kempf Fund